Words of Wisdom

Damiana L. Eugenio, the mother of Philippine Folklore compiled and edited what may very well be considered as the most comprehensive collection of proverbs in our country. There is a limited number of works like this in existence. She spent a lifetime collecting pieces of folk literature that reveal our ancestors' wisdom. When she gathered proverbs from various areas in our country, she declared that our elders lived by simple, yet very meaningful rules of righteous living. In fact, she asserted that even the Spaniards who colonized our country noticed how proverbs formed part of the native spirit. Spanish missionaries were found to have translated such proverbs and other oral expressions in Spanish in order for their fellow religious people to learn our indigenous languages. By doing so, they were able to interact with the early Filipinos their and eventually introduce the Catholic faith.

Proverbs are brief instructive expressions that suggest a specific action, behavior, or judgment. Referred to by some scholars as ―the wisdom of many and the wit of one‖, they are commonly written in the form of short assertions or poetic two-liners which have rhyme. It is interesting to note that people are easily struck by proverbs when they are woven in conversations or writings. This is perhaps because they have the power to teach people the more essential truths about life and the complexity of living.

Compared to lengthy narrations, descriptions, or argumentations, proverbs are able to effect quickly a change in view or disposition.

In Filipino, proverbs are called salawikain or sawikain. They prescribe norms, impart a lesson, or emphasize traditions and beliefs in a community. In the anthology of Damiana L. Eugenio, she classified proverbs into six categories: (1) proverbs expressing a general attitude towards life and the laws that govern life; (2) ethical proverbs recommending certain virtues and condemning certain vices; (3) proverbs expressing a system of values; (4) proverbs expressing general truths and observations about life and human nature; (5) humorous proverbs and (6) miscellaneous proverbs. Below are examples of each category.

1. Proverbs expressing a general attitude towards life and the laws that govern life.

   Walang ligaya sa lupa na di dinilig ng luha. (Tagalog)
   There is no earthly joy that is not watered with tears.

   Say liket ban-bantayey ermen. (Pangasinan)
   Joy is always guarded by sorrow.

   Ang kapalaran ko di ko man hanapin, dudulog lalapit kung talagang akin. (Tagalog)
   The good fortune which is intended for me will come even without my seeking it.

2. Ethical proverbs recommending certain virtues and condemning certain vices

   Walang utang na di pinagbayaran.
   (Tagalog) No debt remains unpaid.

   Dai mo pagpaagahan an magigibo mo ngonyan. (Bikol)
   Do not put off for tomorrow what you can do for today.

   Ayau mo in kahui pila"a ha kawa"an[5] mo bunga.
   (Tausug) Do not cut the tree to get the fruit.

3. Proverbs expressing a system of values

   Ti nasadot a baro cas carne a nadangro.
   (Ilokano) A lazy young man is like foul-smelling meat.

Ang mga tulo singgot sa taong mangguibuhaton paga bayran gayud sa guihapon. (Boholano)
Every drop of perspiration of an industrious man will be rewarded accordingly.

Isa ka tuig nga tiponon, isa ka takna wagwagon.
(Hiligaynon) It takes only a moment to squander what took a year to save.

4. Proverbs expressing general truths and observations about life and human nature

Huli man at magaling, ay naihahabol din.
(Tagalog) A good thing is never too late.

Ti saan a matimtemec, nauyong no macaunget. (Ilokano)
The quite person is slow to anger but terrible when aroused.

Ing mayap a babai, maiguit ya karing rubi.
(Pampango) A good woman is worth more than rubies.

5. Humorous proverbs

Ang gugma sang tigulang daw igui nga nagakamang. (Hiligaynon)
The love of an old man is like a snail that crawls.

Ako kanhi cabalyero nga wala"y kabilinggan; pagdawat sa matrimonio, sa hinanali ng lawas mingniwang. (Cebuano)
I was formerly a gentleman without a care at all, but when I got married, my body shrank and became small.

Kay tagal nanindahan, kabili-bili"y balindang. (Tagalog)

After shopping for a long time, he ended up with a poor purchase.

6. Miscellaneous proverbs (typically expressive of specific realities to a certain area)

Ing matudtud a pemangca e na balu lebasa‟ ng sapa. (Pampango)
The sleeping boatman does not know the streams he has passed.

Mapipia nu sumavat ka a maysaosaod su sagap as canu caviden mu du calawangan q manalamad su among. (Ivatan)
It is better to go home and weave a net than to stay on the shore and watch the fish.

Dica agcapcapoy no bassit ti inapoy; dica agnengnengneng no bassit ti diningdeng. (Ilokano)
Don‘t be too slow if there‘s only a little rice; don‘t be too shy if there‘s only a little viand.

The Indigenous Peoples in the Philippines: A Background

The Philippines has a total land area of 30 Million Hectares. Half of the country is hilly and mostly categorized as a Forest Zone and part of the Public Domain. As of the year 2005, the country has a population of 85 Million. There are 112 ethnolinguistic groups in the country who comprise nearly 15% of the total population of the country.

The Philippines is slowly losing its forest cover and has to cope with an influx of mining activities in the uplands.1 Furthermore, demand for land and natural resources continue to rise with the unabated migration of lowland families into the mountains. Thus there exists a very volatile mix of stakeholders who are in a very strict competition for the limited resources of the uplands.

A vast majority of the 12 Million population of Indigenous Peoples in the Philippines reside in the uplands which they claim as part of their traditional territories. Most of the remaining natural resources in the country are found within the traditional lands of the Indigenous Peoples

The Igorot Creation Mythology

In the beginning there were no people on the earth.

Lumawig, the Great Spirit, came down from the sky and cut many reeds. He divided these into pairs which he placed in different parts of the world, and then he said to them, "You must speak." Immediately the reeds became people, and in each place was a man and a woman who could talk, but the language of each couple differed from that of the others.

Then Lumawig commanded each man and woman to marry, which they did. By and by there were many children, all speaking the same language as their parents. These, in turn, married and had many children. In this way there came to be many people on the earth.

Now Lumawig saw that there were several things which the people on the earth needed to use, so he set to work to supply them. He created salt, and told the inhabitants of one place to boil it down and sell it to their neighbors. But these people could not understand the directions of the Great Spirit, and the next time he visited them, they had not touched the salt.

Then he took it away from them and gave it to the people of a place called Mayinit. These did as he directed, and because of this he told them that they should always be owners of the salt, and that the other peoples must buy from them.

Then Lumawig went to the people of Bontoc and told them to get clay and make pots. They got the clay, but they did not understand the molding, and the jars were not well shaped. Because of their failure, Lumawig told them that they would always have to buy their jars, and he moved the pottery over to Samoki. When he told the people there what to do, they did just as he said, and their jars were well shaped and beautiful. Then the Great Spirit saw that they were fit owners of the pottery, and he told them that they should always make many jars to sell.

In this way Lumawig taught the people and brought to them all the things which they now have.

Ugyao, the Human Narra Tree

On top of a lofty mountain stood a beautiful narra tree called Ugyao. Its waving branches attracted passersby who take a rest beneath its alluring freshness. Before this period, Ugyao was a young handsome man who _____1. (came, come) from a royal family. Because of his pride and heartlessness to the poor, Kabunyan, who disliked pride, allowed a genie to use his magic spell to change Ugyao into a narra tree to stand on top of a mountain as a resting spot for passersby.

In the big villages surrounding the mountain lived Idonsan, a paragon of beauty among the women in the village.

It came to the attention of the resting folks that whenever Idonsan is in the group, the tree would _____2. (bow, bows) down its branches and its leaves wilted and became pale. It was also observed that whenever she is not in the group, the tree _____3. *(*show,shows) no changes at all. This made the people including Indosan _____4. *(*believe, believes) that Ugyao tree _____5. *(*is, are) in love with someone. The people then convinced her to try talking to the tree.

She went alone to the tree and said, "Oh handsome Ugyao tree, you are part of humanity, open your lips and _____6. *(*speak, speaks) to me". I am ready for whatever may be if you love and marry me" ugyao responded so lovingly. "Oh dearest, you're a paragon of beauty in the whole community. True love does not need many words. Today to your parents let us be".

Then Ugyao lowered its branches and leaves around Idonsan signifying a welcome embrace.

Hold on to my branches and get ready to go", Ugyao said. The roots being pulled down from the earth made a cracking sound and the leafy branches made rustling sound as Ugyao moved away from his place.

As they moved, the roots of Ugyao harrowed the pathway and the leafy branches rustled. On one side of the mountain, Ugyao gently left its branches. “Hold on firmly on my trunk”, Ugyao told Idonsan.

Near the village gate, Ugyao removed his trunk which _____7. *(*fell, fall) off like slabs of board alongside the pathway. A very handsome Ugyao appeared and sat up with Idonsan on the stump close to the roots. When they reached the last turn opposite the village gate, the lovers left the tree stump and walked to enter the village amidst the shout of the multitude to welcome them.

The marriage celebration _____8. *(*was, were) quickly prepared. The people of the nearby villages were invited to attend the marriage feast of dancing, eating, drinking and other forms of merrymaking. Not long afterwards, Idonsan gave birth to a baby.

Happiness usually comes to a couple when a baby _____9. *(*is, was) born. But the couple was not because an issue, which Ugyao _____10. *(*was, were) not aware of cropped up. In the cultural tradition, when a child _____11. *(*is,was) born, the parents should _____12. *(*present, presents) the baby to the parents of the husband to be acknowledged as a grandchild. The parents in turn would slaughter an animal and _____13. *(*give, gives) a precious blanket that could sling the child at a parent’s back.

It did not take long time for Ugyao to be fed up. He _____14. *(*take, took) up his roots an, the slabs of his trunk till he was enclosed inside the tree. Upon seeing this, Idonsan cried loudly that they should return back but the voice from the tree simply said, “Please follow me and give your cakes to my parents. When they reached the top of the mountain where they had stood before, the magical tree planted itself firmly and _____15. *(*is, was)heard no more.
